DODINGTON. (Dorcas I'Anson, daughter of Sir Bryan I'Anson, first Baronet, married Sir Francis Dodington, of Dodington, Co. Somerset.)

In the sixth year of King Charles I., Sir Francis was Sheriff of Somerset. On the breaking out of the Civil Wars, he was the first that executed the King's commission of array in this County, after which he joined himself to the Earl of Hereford, and served as a Colonel in the Western army with such zeal and fidelity that he was, by name, excepted in the Treaty of Uxbridge, and all other treaties that were afterwards entered into between the Parliament and the King.

Upon the destruction of the Royal Party, he fled into France, and there maintained himself several years by selling English knives and buckles; till at last a "French lady" took compassion on him and married him (Dorcas I'Anson), and by her he had two sons (she died before the Restoration), both bred up in the French Army. (He had a son by an earlier wife, who succeeded him to the estates.)

The ancient Arms of Dodington, as they were painted in the windows of the hall of the manor house at Dodington, an ancient building near the Church, and as they are carved over the Church door, are—

Sable, three bugle horns argent.

The Dodingtons are descended from William de Dodeton, elder son of Adam de Cunteville by his marriage with the daughter and heiress of Ranulph de Strington, in the reign of Henry II., and the manor has been in the possession of the family ever since.

JAMES ANNESLEY, EARL OF ANGLESEY.

Arms—

Paly of six arg. and az., a bend gules.

This family is one of great antiquity in the County of Nottingham, and is said to have resided there before the Norman Conquest. Of this name was Richard de Annesley, possessor of Annesley anno 1079, from whom descended Sir John Annesley, Kt., who married Isabel, sister of Sir John Chandos, K.G., temp. Edward III.

Sir Francis Annesley, Bart., was created Baron Mount Norris by James I. in 1621 and Viscount Valentia, Irish Honours. He married Dorothy, daughter of Sir John Philips, Bart., of Pictou Castle, and died in 1660, leaving a son, Arthur, who was created an English Peer by Charles II. by the title of Baron Annesley and Earl of Anglesey. He was remarkable for his loyalty to King Charles II. whilst in exile, and the honours conferred on him were duly merited. He was Treasurer of the Navy and Lord Privy Seal. He died in 1686.

By Elizabeth, his wife, daughter and co-heir of Sir James Altham, Kt., Herefordshire, he had surviving five sons, the eldest of whom, James, was created Baron Altham in the Peerage of Ireland, with limitation of that honour to his younger brothers, Richard, Arthur, and Charles, and six daughters.

Daughters—

1. Dorothy. Married Richard Earl of Tyrone.
2. Elizabeth. Married Alexander McDonnell.
3. Frances. Married Lord Haversham.
4. Phillipa. Married Charles Lord Mohun.
5. Ann. Married — Baker, Esq.
6. Bridget. Died young.

James, the next Earl, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Earl of Rutland, and died in 1690, leaving three sons, James, John and Arthur.

James succeeded his father, and married Catharine, a natural daughter of James II., and left an only daughter, Catharine, who married William, son of Sir Constantine Phipps, Kt. He was succeeded by his brother, John, who married Henrietta, daughter of the Earl of Derby, by whom he had one daughter.

He was succeeded by his brother, Arthur, who married Mary, daughter of Lord Haversham, and died without issue.

On his death, his cousin, Richard Annesley, assumed the title, ignoring the claims of James Annesley, son of his older brother, Arthur Lord Altham, by Mary, natural daughter of John Sheffield, Duke of Buckingham, who had been kidnapped and transported by his uncle, Richard, and sold as a slave, to make room for his own succession to the honours and estates of the family.

James Annesley succeeded, however, in getting home to England. He took action against his uncle to recover the estates and title.

The trial commenced on Friday, 11th November, 1743, and lasted fifteen days. There were thirteen Counsel for the Plaintiff, including Robert Marshall, Phillip Tisdall, and Phillip Walsh. For the Defendant were fourteen Counsel, including Anthony Malone, St. George Caulfield, Warden Flood, Eaton Stauard, John Smyth, and Anthony Marley.

Amongst the Jury were Sir Thomas Taylor, Bart., and the Rt. Hon. W. Graham.

The verdict was for the Plaintiff, entitling him to possession of both title and estates, but he does not appear ever to have assumed the title.
